Prerequisites

Students who took one of the courses listed below will not be allowed to register to the course Israeli Counter-terrorism Policy (753):

4079 – Israel's struggle with terrorism
4091 – Israeli Counter-terrorism Policy

Course Description

In this seminar, we will examine the development of Israel's counter-terrorism policies from the establishment of the State of Israel in 1948 until the present, in light of the development of the terrorism challenge faced by Israel in the Palestinian, Lebanese and international arenas. We will examine the various positions taken by Israeli decision-makers in contending with the terrorism phenomenon, differences of opinion and various schools of thought, decision-making procedures and their output.

Course Goals

Israel had to contend with different types of terrorism (suicide attacks, lone wolf attacks, hostage barricade & kidnapping) and has thus developed several measures in terms of prevention, recovery and resilience, offensive and defensive measures, etc. As such, the Israeli Counter Terrorism policy has become an interesting case study, and the lessons learned from this case study are relevant to other democracies around the world.

This seminar will also present both practical and theoretical perspectives on a range of topics and activities related to Israeli dilemmas in countering terrorism.

Grading

Composition of Grade: Final Seminar Paper (80% of the final grade) & Class Presentation (20% of the final grade)
