Course Description

This course is designed to provide students with the opportunities to work in teams to develop deliverables for partners at the intersection between technology and law and society

Course Goals

Students are expected to complete one or more deliverables for their partners. Students should gain an appreciation of the many issues that can or might arise at the intersection between law, society and technology

Grading

Students will be graded on the quality of their deliverable.

Although there is no participation component per se, the instructor reserves the right to dock the students if they are not pulling their weight within the team dynamic or other related reasons.

Learning Outcomes

Students should appreciate the complexities of working with teams on projects that seek to understand and present complicated issues that require a multidisciplinary understanding of the relevant issues.
