The Michel Litvak Charity Foundation focuses mostly on philanthropical projects in Russia and Israel. It was established by the Belgian entrepreneur Michel Litvak, Founder and CEO of Oteko Ltd.

Joey Low - Israel At Heart

Joey Low founded Israel At Heart in 2002 as a nonprofit organization whose single concern is the wellbeing of Israel. At Israel At Heart we wish to do everything we can to promote a better understanding of Israel and its people. We are not part of any Jewish organization, do not represent any government agency or political party and are, therefore, free to express ourselves in any way we wish. Over the years, Israel At Heart has initiated a number of programs intended to promote a better understanding of Israel and its people. In the past year, the organization has focused its energy and resources on defeating the government's deportation policy. Over the last 9 years, the organization has provided more than 40 full scholarships to young refugees who were looking to receive a higher education, both undergraduate and graduate studies. Since launching our programs, our students have graduated from top colleges with degrees in law, government studies, business, communication and psychology.

The Nevzlin family

The Nevzlin family is honored to be able to act on its vision and values across the Jewish, Israeli and global landscape. Key focus areas include Jewish Life & Community, Human Rights & Civil Society, Research & Education and Health & Wellbeing. For the past decade, the family's flagship project in the area Jewish Peoplehood has been the revival and transformation of The Diaspora Museum in Tel Aviv into The Museum of the Jewish People at Beit Hatfutsot, which today provides an inclusive, engaging celebration of 4,000 years of Jewish life, history and culture.

The Social Policy Institute (SPI), Washington University in St. Louis

The Social Policy Institute (SPI) is a new Washington University-wide initiative to address pressing social issues while collaboratively catalyzing student, faculty, researcher, and community partner social policy understanding and impact at local, state, federal, and international levels. There is a critical need for innovative approaches that create sustainable solutions to inequities by connecting research, policy, and practice across fields, disciplines, and sectors. SPI aims to focus on approaches to this need through research around financial wellness, health, housing, and education. The Social Policy Institute's mission is to foster interdisciplinary and cross-sector collaboration to design, test, inform, and impact innovative policy solutions to social problems. The vision of the Institute is to reduce social, economic, health, and education inequities at the local, state, and national levels through evidence-informed policy and practice.
