

Or Cohen Raviv, PhD

Or has previously served as Vice President of the Institute for Structural Reforms and as Director of Research and Data at the Civil Service Commission. She completed her postdoctoral fellowship in the Department of Sociology and the "Politics of Inequality" research group at the University of Konstanz, Germany, where she was awarded five grants and scholarships, including those from the Israel Science Foundation and the Minerva Fellowship. Or holds a Ph.D. in Sociology from Tel Aviv University and was a visiting researcher at Cornell University, New York.

She has taught at both Tel Aviv University and Ruppin Academic Center and was a research fellow at the Elrov Institute for Real Estate Research at Tel Aviv University. Or has published her work in academic journals, books, and policy papers.

Main research fields:

- Inequality in homeownership and wealth in international and intergenerational comparisons.
- Racial-ethnic inequality in housing wealth.
- The impact of AI on labor market inequality, particularly between majority and minority groups (e.g., Muslims vs. Jews, Jewish Orthodox vs. secular, gender disparities).

For Or's personal website

Or's LinkedIn