

Yehudit (Dita) Bronicki

In 1965, along with her husband Yehuda, Mrs. Bronicki founded Ormat Technologies Inc., listed in New York and Tel Aviv, which specializes in alternative energy sources, particularly geothermal energy. From 1991 until her retirement in July 2014, she had been the CEO of the Ormat Group. She was also a board member at Ormat Technologies Inc., as well as its subsidiaries, and sat on the board of various start-up companies launched by the Ormat Group, including Orbotech, Orgenics, Orad, and others.

Mrs. Bronicki had served for several years in the Advisory Council of the Bank of Israel.

Since her retirement she has been involved in voluntary work, mainly in various areas related to vocational education. As part of this activity, she has been a member in various organizations such as Insights in Education, the Technological Colleges' Forum where she serves as the chairperson, and the boards of governors of several academic institutions.
