

Aamer Abu-Qarn is a senior lecturer in the Economics department at Ben-Gurion University of the Negev. Aamer holds a Ph.D. in economics from Northeastern University and MA and BA in economics from Ben-Gurion University.

Aamer's fields of interest include development economics and economic growth especially for MENA economies, and economic aspects of the Israeli-Arab conflict. Recently, Aamer focuses on the integration of Arabs, especially women, in the Israeli labor market and on the impact of penetration of public transportation into Arab communities in Israel on work and health outcomes.